4. Why do the results on the Four Core Systems page differ from the charts in the other pages?
<https://youtu.be/z7pG39DpPmA?t=4m37s>

The Four Core Systems and 6 Lifestyle Areas are arranged in alphabetical order on the 4 Core Systems/Lifestyle Results Page. These 10 items are scanned and their individual dR responses are shown as an overview, or "Big Picture" perspective, in order to identify a few top areas of the report you may want to focus on. Further down on the report, each of those 10 areas have their own specific pages, which allow a more in-depth and thorough analysis when found relevant by you and your client. The dR values shown on the initial bar chart DO NOT indicate how many items may be out of range for that particular area, but instead represent the body's response to that specific Virtual Item.

In contrast, when looking at each specific page for the 4 Core Systems or Lifestyle Areas, you'll find the associated Virtual Items that are out of range or that have a zero (0) dR value. These are considered to be relevant data points for further analysis, and are arranged by Absolute Max to Min as opposed to alphabetical order as found on the Four Core Systems/Lifestyle Results Page. Absolute Max to Min means dR values are displayed from highest numbers (regardless of + or -) to lowest numbers.

5. Why am I getting so many 0.00 responses? And what do they mean?
